7. MOTIONS, ORDERS AND RESOLUTIONS

254-23 Resolve: That it is the sense of the Malden City Council that they support and affirm the current plan and timeline of the Racial Equity Commission to engage a consultant, host town hall community meetings, analyze demographic data, review the past history of racial equity efforts in Malden, and make recommendations to advance racial equity in the city. The REC will plan to deliver its final report and recommendations to the City Council and the Mayor in the Fall of 2024, no later than December 2024.

Resolve: That it is the sense of the Malden City Council that the city must develop a plan to increase local revenue in the next 3-5 years to match projected future expenses. In addition to the regular annual inflation of city salaries and costs, currently projected expenses for the city include: capital investments for schools and city facilities; road and sidewalk construction and maintenance; priority projects such as the Malden River Works project and the Cultural Arts Center; pension and pension benefits costs for city staff and retirees; and Malden's required contribution to the Northeast Metro Tech High School construction project. Additionally, increased required local contributions to education remain a significant liability under Massachusetts Chapter 70.

Malden should evaluate all possible local income sources to develop clear targets and a plan to meet these needs. This plan should include a strategic approach for using zoning and other tools to promote a sustainable rate of mixed-use development for growth in the commercial and residential tax base. It should also include investigation into new income sources at the local, state, and federal levels.

The FY 2024 city budget is balanced with the use of one-time federal stimulus funds from the American Rescue Plan (ARPA) and cash reserves. To be fiscally responsible stewards of our city, we must act now to develop a sustainable approach which avoids painful cuts to city staff and services in the future.

Resolve: That it is the sense of the Malden City Council that it is vital for our city's future to have a fair requirement for local education funding, one that reflects the city's true ability to pay as tied to our actual revenue sources. The Massachusetts Student Opportunity Act (SOA), now in its fourth year of implementation, is providing critical resources for the Malden Public Schools to support our students and families. With $9 million in new Chapter 70 state funds for next year, we are grateful to be able to hire new teachers and support staff for our students, who are 74% Black, Indigenous and People of Color, 63% low income, 23% English Language Learners, and 18% students with disabilities.

However, as the full SOA foundation funding formula is phased in, it is also dramatically raising Malden's expected contribution to the schools beyond our ability to pay. Next year requires Malden to contribute $3.1 million more in local funding for schools, capturing 85% of the total expected increase in local tax revenue and receipts for the whole city. As a Gateway City, Malden is a high-need, diverse, mixed income city with a large immigrant community. Yet Malden currently has one of the lowest per-capita expenditures of Massachusetts cities on all other non-school services, and our local property taxes are already at the limit allowed by state law. As the SOA continues to phase in over the next few years, increases in much-needed education state aid are likely to come with a steep price of requiring Malden to reduce other city services for our residents, such as public health, infrastructure, libraries, parks, and emergency responders.

In its 2020 local contribution study, the Massachusetts Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) noted that the required local contribution calculation is "problematic" and has been almost unchanged since 2007. We thank our state delegation for their support, and call on our state leaders in the legislature, Governor's office and DESE to fix the required local contribution so that it reflects the ability to pay equitably and accurately for schools and other essential city services, for Malden and all other high-need communities.
